

Personal Brand Shoots — Context

What it is: a personal branding photography service run with Cole, selling done-for-you photo systems to men building an online presence (Instagram, dating profiles, LinkedIn, founder brands). The product is not photos. The product is a personal brand in image form.

Origin, recorded 2026-08-19: inbound demand arrived before the offer existed. A prospect messaged Fahad: "Yo question. Can I get separate pricing from ur marketing agency for 25 and 50 edited pics." Cole and Fahad decided the same day to package it properly rather than quote ad hoc. Cole's framing from that conversation is the positioning line: "We not selling photos, we selling personal branding."

Decisions already made (from the 2026-08-19 conversation)

Do not reopen these without new information.

1. The pricing unit is the "look", not the edited photo count. A look = location x outfit. Three shots of the same outfit in the same spot is one look, not three photos. Photographers price on edited-shot counts; that framing was explicitly rejected ("fk the photographers, they're not business people").
2. Final edited photos are 1 to 3 per look, hard maximum 3. Set by Fahad 2026-08-19 (afternoon texts to Cole floated 1 to 2; settled at 1 to 3 the same day). Supersedes Cole's looser "2 to 3 poses or angles" range. The cap is deliberate: more photos means buying more looks.
3. An outfit change counts as a new look even in the same location. For IG branding and dating, what matters is postable pictures, not geography.
4. Distant location changes are a premium, roughly C$20 to C$100 per location change, not a separate package.
5. The formula comes first, extras are add-ons. Price = f(looks) + location premiums + extras. Anything not in the formula is an extra charge.
6. A probe call precedes any quote. Cole: "Also need to figure out what they want exactly with a call. But have an outline before going into it." The outline is offer.md; the call is sales-call-script.md.

From Fahad's planning note (2026-08-19)

- C$1,500 anchor package: 3 looks (revised 2026-08-19 from the note's original "3 locations" reading). This sets the rate at roughly C$500 per look and makes the offer premium by construction: 3 to 9 finished photos at C$1,500. The whole ladder in offer.md hangs off this.
- "2 to 3 people idea": ambiguous as recorded. Most likely a group-shoot format (2 to 3 clients share a session, each pays less, margin per hour goes up). Confirm intent before building it into the offer. Logged as open below.
- Ads as the CTA channel for demand beyond word of mouth. Do not spend on ads before the offer has closed at least one full-price client organically; that is the standing sequence from mental-models/sequencing-and-order-of-operations.md.
- "Coreycha rip and repackage": a competitor or reference photographer whose packaging is worth modelling. Task for Cole or Fahad: pull their package structure, keep what works, rebuild it around the looks formula. Not yet done.

- Archetype discovery and physique check are pre-shoot deliverables, now built into the offer as the two highest-leverage differentiators. See offer.md.

Division of labour

- Cole: delivery. Shooting, editing, shot direction, package definition refinement. He committed on 2026-08-19 to drafting the package presentation.
- Fahad: offer, sales machinery, funnel. This folder. Fahad's hours are the binding constraint across every venture (10 to 15 evening hours per week, see profile/fahad.md), so his role here must stay asset-shaped: things built once that Cole can run.

Partnership terms are not written down yet. The same conditions that apply to the Ali option apply here, because the risk is identical: an ambiguous arrangement with someone he likes. Before the first dollar moves: a written split, what it applies to (session fee, extras, or both), and who fronts costs. See conditions 4 and 5 in always-booked/sales-capacity-and-partnership.md. Cole doing delivery makes this venture cheap in Fahad-hours, which is the only reason it fits the current stack at all.

Constraints inherited from everything else

- QTSI comes first. Personal equipment, personal accounts, personal hours. Photography for individuals is far from QTSI's business, so conflict risk is low, but the IP and hours rules still apply in full. See always-booked/constraints-and-risk.md.
- Sequencing flag, stated once and honestly: this venture appeared mid-week while Salon Le Barbu is due live 2026-08-20. Building this offer document is exactly the stage N+1 pattern logged in constraints-and-risk.md. It is mitigated, not excused, by the fact that Cole carries delivery and the demand was inbound. The rule that keeps this safe: Fahad's time on this venture is capped at offer and sales assets until Le Barbu ships. No shooting, no ads, no logo.
- Synergies are real but secondary. The archetype and physique-check deliverables draw directly on Project Greek God (peak-week protocol) and the Social Life Operator photo playbook. This is a rare venture where existing repo knowledge is the product.

Open items

- [ ] Confirm what "2-3 people idea" meant (group shoots vs team size)
- [ ] Identify and analyze "Coreycha", rip and repackage the structure
- [ ] Written Cole split before the first paid booking
- [ ] Name the agency (time-box: 30 minutes, once, after the first paid client, not before)
- [ ] Reply to the inbound "25 and 50 edited pics" prospect with the probe call, not a price
